DEFINITION

Dependent Student: means a student under the age of 24 who is claimed for federal income tax purposes as a dependent by his/her parents.

Education Records: as defined by FERPA, those records, files, documents, and other materials which contain information directly related to a student; and are maintained by an educational agency or institution or by a person acting for such agency or institution.

FERPA: the acronym for the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, originally enacted in 1974 to: (1) assure parents of enrolled students’ access to their education records, and (2) protect such individuals’ right to privacy by limiting the transferability of their records without their consent. Parents transfer their rights under FERPA to their child when he or she has attained eighteen years of age or is attending an institution of postsecondary education.

POLICY CONTENTS

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) affords eligible students certain rights with respect to their education records. The University may disclose any and all education records to parents of dependent students, without the consent of the eligible student, if the student is a dependent for tax purposes under the IRS rules within ten (10) business days.

Any parent requesting information pertaining to his/her dependent child’s educational record based on dependency status must provide a written request to the Registrar’s Office with the following information:

- Date of request,
- Student’s name,
- Copy of the most recent year’s tax return listing the student as a dependent,
- Copy of a valid government-issued identification card or passport,
- Specific records requested, and
- Signature.

Upon receipt of the parent’s written request, the Office of the Registrar must notify the student of the request and the intent to disclose the records to the parent. Notifications are made via the student’s electronic mail account. If the student has not signed a Release of Information Agreement listing the parent as someone the University has permission to disclose his/her educational record to, a reasonable amount of time must be given for the notification to reach the student and for the student to respond.

Students seeking to release his/her education record to their parents, should complete a FERPA Consent to Release Student Information form to allow parent(s) access to their educational record. Consent forms not submitted in person with proper ID are required to be notarized.

The Registrar will retain a copy of the request and any other documentation in the student’s file.
